

14 Closed Captioning Jobs That Allow You to Work From Home

The other night, my hubby and I snuggled down to have some quiet time in front of the TV when it occurred to us that the closed captioning feature was activated on one of the channels. As we fiddled with the remote, I wondered: How do all the shows and movies get these captions? Better yet, is this a potential job opportunity that would allow me to work from home? After a little research, to my surprise, the answer was YES!

Not only can you work from home watching classic TV shows, movies, and YouTube videos, but many of these closed captioning positions also pay well. Talk about a win-win.

Where can you find these fantastic closed captioning jobs that allow you to work from home? No worries; we've done the research and the work for you.

Below, we've found some of the best companies that hire for closed captioning jobs that allow you to work from home.

