Faucet-mount filters don't last forever, and they need to be changed every so often in order to keep them working properly. However, you can extend the lifespan of your PUR faucet mount filter by cleaning it regularly. Simply wipe the surface of the cartridge with a cloth dipped in water and soap. A clean filter can keep contaminants from entering your drinking water, and it will also prevent rust and grime from forming on the cartridge. If you notice that the filter isn't delivering clean, clear water anymore, it might be time to replace your PUR faucet-mount filtration system. The manufacturer's 3-month lifespan for the faucet-mount filter is a good indication of when it's time to swap out your cartridge.
