Cockroaches are a common household pest that can be difficult to control. While there are many chemical pesticides available, some people prefer to use natural methods to control cockroach pests. Here are some natural ways to control cockroach pests, according to various sources – using natural ways to control cockroach pests include using spices, such as bay leaves, garlic, and peppermint, tea tree oil, borax and sugar, baking soda and sugar, diatomaceous earth, neem oil, and boric acid. These methods can be effective, but may not completely eliminate an infestation. It's important to maintain cleanliness, seal cracks, and take out the trash regularly to prevent cockroach pests.

And here are some important tips to control cockroach pest in Auburn Maine, according to Green Pest Defense:

 Seal cracks: Cockroaches can enter your home through small cracks and crevices. Seal any openings around the outside of your home to prevent them from getting in.

Vacuum frequently: Regularly vacuuming your home can help remove any cockroach eggs or food particles that may attract them.

Keep counters and floors clean: Cockroaches are attracted to food and water sources. Keep your counters and floors clean and free of crumbs and spills.

Take out the trash: Always take the trash out when it's full to prevent cockroaches from being attracted to the smell.

Fix leaks: Cockroaches need water to survive, so fix any leaks or standing water in your home.
