

This Breathtaking Bridge in Vietnam Might Just Be The Coolest Bridge Ever

One thing that continues to amaze me is architecture from the past and present that is designed to make a statement. Architecture that will stand the test of time and inspire creativity, engineering and how far we can push the limits of design. There is a bridge just outside of Da Nang in Vietnam that exhibits each one of these qualities perfectly. It is a viewing bridge suspended by two giant hands and is showing tourists from around the world. The bridge is over 4,500 feet above sea level and looks over the beautiful surrounding countryside. The bridge features a curved design lined with vivid flowers and gold accents. The colorful and bright bridge is suspended by two giant ancient looking hands that seem to be protruding from the stone earth below. The construction took about a year and it turned out incredible. Take a look at this marvel of architecture, design and engineering in this bridge.

The bridge offers views as far as the eye can see across the lush green Vietnam countryside.

The hands look as though they were carved from stone while in fact they are a sculpture made of wire mesh and fiberglass. The hands were painted perfectly to look like aged stone with lichen and moss growing on them.
