

The lush green statues of a family in a tropical forest are a beautiful representation of harmony with nature. aa

The image depicts large, green statues of a family made from what appears to be plant material, walking hand in hand through a lush, verdant environment. The statues are stylized representations of parents and children, and they are surrounded by a crowd of people, with a waterfall visible in the background. The scene is set in a dense, tropical forest, adding to the sense of harmony with nature.

