

Home at last! Our koala friend is finally home after a 1000 mile journey from arising tide! naa

Last year, Amanda Owens and her family were enjoying a day of recreation along the river near Australia's Wivenhoe Dam when Owens' husband noticed a little gray blob in a patch of reeds sticking out from the middle of the riverbed.

When they got a closer look, the family was heartbroken to realize the blob was a little koala who'd somehow gotten stranded in a rising tide and had no way back to land.
