

How to Start Your Own Laundry Service Business From Home

If there's one thing you can always count on each week, it's laundry: rain or shine. Whether or not you're busy, you and your family will have laundry to wash. Many people might tell you that they absolutely don't like doing laundry, and this could provide you with the perfect opportunity to make money by starting your own laundry service business from home.

The average American household does 8 to 10 loads of laundry per week, and the U.S. laundry facilities and dry-cleaning services industry is valued at over $10.2 billion, so there is lots of money to be made by simply washing and folding clothes other people's clothes.

Starting a laundry service business is an excellent way for moms to work from home and earn hundreds per week. After all, doing laundry isn't that bad. It's flexible and allows you to do other things around the house while a load of clothes is washing or drying. Here's what you need to know when it comes to starting your own laundry service business from home.

HOW TO START YOUR OWN
LAUNDRY SERVICE

Work at HOME
WOMAN

Getting Started Is Easy

When considering any new home-based business idea, it's essential to look at your existing skills and experience to see if you need extra training, licenses, or certifications. You likely already have

