

Key Takeaways

- You can transform your passion into a fun online job from home, whether you are a therapist, personal fitness trainer, programmer, teacher, accountant, or graphic designer.
- Some of the highest-paying online jobs include working as an SEO expert, copywriting, web developing, accounting, being a voiceover artist, investing in businesses, or event planning.
- As an online freelancer, it's important to learn to identify scammers, find legitimate freelance marketing job boards, and build your job portfolio.

Whether you're a seasoned professional or just starting your career, there are many opportunities with no education requirements in the world of remote jobs. Prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, working from home was a luxury, but according to Forbes, as of 2023, 12.7% of people work full-time from home, while 28.7% work partly from home and partly from the office.

If you're seeking online jobs you can do from home, we've compiled a comprehensive list of different careers well-suited for remote options and how much you can earn.

Easy Work From Home Jobs

You can start with some of these easy work from home jobs.

Virtual Assistant

As a virtual assistant (VA), you'll work for an individual or company on a contract or self-employed basis. The main role of a VA is office management work in the form of answering emails, coordinating schedules and calendars, transcribing documents, making travel arrangements, social-media-related activities, and more.

Some of the requirements for virtual assistant jobs include time management, organization skills, communication skills, computer proficiency, creativity, and more. You may get an entry-level remote job without experience.

In Canada, salaries for a VA job range from $43,000 to $65,000. However, it can be as high as $85,000 for experienced VAs.

Data Entry

Data entry jobs require people to get new and updated information about a customer and add the data to computer databases. Your daily activities include gathering data, interpreting information, and contacting people to verify information.

Some of the skills you need include typing accuracy, communication skills, attention to detail, and knowledge of basic software. The average annual salary for a data entry clerk is $35,100 or $18 per hour.

Take Surveys Online

