Amazun broken imayes rix rur olle olipenemovalaa

You may have heard the frustrating news that Amazon is removing its imagesfrom Site Stripe feature.

This means that if you are an Amazon affiliate and you ever used their code toembed an Amazon product image on your site, it is going to disappear soon.

But not only that but your site will soon be riddled with images that look like this:

Broken image for example only – not real. Bothered you, didn't it?

Source: The Blog Fixer

This is very annoying – and creators are rightfully freaking out right now.

Because not only does this look awful but it's going to cost you a LOT of moneyin lost conversions.

But there is a fix!

I can recommend this fix, where dedicated tech support will seamlessly replace all Amazon images that are about to break so that they don't disappear, meaning your affiliate income won't disappear with them!