

Singer Mr Real Claims Vibrator Usage Among Nigerian Men Is on the Rise

Nigerian singer Victor Uchenna Okafor, popularly known as Mr Real, has sparked conversation with a bold claim that 60 to 70 percent of Nigerian men now carry vibrators.

The artist shared his observation in a video posted on Instagram, where he recounted personal encounters with men who admitted to owning vibrators. These devices, typically associated with women for sexual pleasure or relaxation, are reportedly being used by men as “extra tools” during intimate encounters.

“Sixty percent, if not 70 percent, of guys have a vibrator. Are you surprised?” Mr Real said in the video.

He elaborated, “I didn’t believe it until I saw it. Not just one — I’ve seen six or seven guys I know who have vibrators. They call it extra tools, in case the main engine gets tired.”

The singer also suggested that men use these devices in relationships, particularly with partners who engage in activities outside their relationship.
